Book of Punishment Put to-day. Before Inquiry Shows That One Woman Was Manacled for Twelve Days

11 Bedford Girls

Chained at Once,

The investigation into charges of cruelty to prisoners at the State Reformatory for Women at Bedford, N. Y., disclosed yesterday that a record of the women chained to their cell doors in the last three years had been compiled recently. The record showed that eleven women had been punished in eleven women had been punished in this way in one day.

It was through Dr. Elizabeth Jaeger, assistant physician at the institution, that John S. Kennedy, of the State Prison Commission, who is conducting the inquiry, learned of the punishment book. Dr. Jaeger, who had steadfastly denied that girls ever were strung up with their feet off the floor or otherwise ill-treated, chanced to mention the book and its production was demanded. There was a long delay before it could be found.

The eleven girls were chained to their ceil doors October 26, 1916. Their names were given and this memorandum appears in the hand of Dr. Orie Grover, then physician at the institution:

Says Shoulders Were Not Lame

"Were they lame?" demanded Humphrey Lynch, attorney for residents of White Plains at the hearing.

Dr. Conant declared they were not. She admitted that she had not examined the girl, who was fully clothed.

"I don't attend to every complaint that's made," she explained. "It would be impossible. You have to use your common sense in these matters. The girl apparently was not suffering."

Seven matrons who were called as witnesses, one of whom had been seventeen years at the reformatory, declared they never had seen any one strung up, ducked in a bucket or gagged with soap and water. Of each one Mr. Lynch demanded whether their duties took them to the disciplinary building and each replied that they did not. One was matron in the nursery.

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

I stood next to Mr. Frank E. Campbell in the reception room of The Funeral Church, Broadway and 66th Street, and helped to hand out to hundreds of little children mittens and stockings and hats and dren, after they had sung "Silent Night, Holy Night" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," said to Mr. Campbell:—"To most of these children, what you gave is their only Christmas joy."

Then The Funeral Church quartette rendered selections.

We had intended to "receive" the children between 10 and 11 A. M. When the reception was over was twenty minutes of two.

We had enough presents left for at least a thousand more children.

still others in wonderment whether it was true or only a dream.

We did not give them a chance to say thanks; there were so many and we had to be quick.
But, oh my, wasn't it glorious!
